

Advisory Team & Emergency Management Response Team

ADVISORY TEAM

The WNE COVID-19 Advisory Team was established to advise the Administration in its efforts to monitor, prevent, contain, and mitigate the spread of coronavirus to members of the University community.

The Advisory Team is composed of faculty and staff with medical, scientific, and related experience/expertise to assist in the University's management of the COVID-19 pandemic. As WNE's in-house panel of experts, the Advisory Team will recommend policies, reiterate public health protocols, and facilitate communications to optimize the health and wellbeing of our campus community.

The Advisory Team consists of:

- Dr. Jilla Sabeti (Chair), associate professor of pharmacology
- Dr. Wayne Carpenter, director of counseling services
- Lauren Dansereau, nurse practitioner and health educator
- Dr. Seth Housman, clinical associate professor of infectious diseases
- Dr. Corey Laskey, clinical associate professor of psychiatry
- Dr. Colin Mahoney, assistant professor of psychology
- Shaun McGrady, director of digital strategy
- Dr. Mary Rothermich, professional educator in biology
- Dr. Mike Rust, associate professor of biomedical engineering

EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT RESPONSE TEAM

University's Emergency Management Response Team (EMRT) is composed of representatives from both the administration and faculty, including the President, Vice Presidents, Deans, University Senate President, and Faculty Council Chair.

In order to provide for an organized response to major emergencies on campus, the Emergency Response Team assists the University in responding to, managing, mitigating, and recovering from the emergency. The Team is also responsible for working with off-campus resources and agencies, such as local and state government agencies, police, emergency teams, and media.

In the case of the COVID-19 pandemic, EMRT is responsible for the coordination and approval of recommendations as they pertain to the University's COVID-19 response, protocols, and alert levels.
