First Assignment

Please register for the class TWEN page. The syllabus can be found under the Syllabus tab. It contains all the assignments for the semester.

The assignment for the first class is to read "The Great Fiction of AI," "AI art is challenging the boundaries of curation," and "U.S. appeals court says artificial intelligence can't be patent inventor." All of these readings are linked in the syllabus. I will be posting some discussion questions about these readings to TWEN in the Course Materials tab in the folder for Class 1. We will be talking about these readings during our first class.

You should also listen or read the transcript for the Class 1 Lecture. This is an introductory lecture giving you some basic foundation in IP theory before we dive in. Links to a captioned video file, a PowerPoint file, and a transcript are in the folder for Class 1 in the Course Materials tab of the TWEN page. You can choose the method by which you want to experience the lecture; all three files have the same information in different format.

Looking forward to meeting all of you!
